

atom

Smallest particle still characterizing a chemical element. It consists of a nucleus of a positive charge (Z is the proton number and e the elementary charge) carrying almost all its mass (more than 99.9%) and Z electrons determining its size.

Source:

Physical Chemistry Division, unpublished
Red Book, p. 35