

anionotropic rearrangement (or anionotropy)

A rearrangement in which the migrating group moves with its electron pair from one atom to another.

Source:

PAC, 1994, 66, 1077 (Glossary of terms used in physical organic chemistry (IUPAC Recommendations 1994)) on page 1083